

2021 GRENVILLE CLARK AWARD

The Grenville Clark Award is given to a faculty member or administrator whose voluntary activities serve to advance the cause of peace and human rights. Michael Mannor has dedicated more than a decade to advancing the human rights of those with Down syndrome. He serves as chair of the board of directors of the LuMind IDSC Foundation, a nonprofit organization that has raised tens of millions of dollars to fund Down syndrome research, education, clinical trials, community development, and family support. As part of his role with LuMind, he works with researchers, clinicians, philanthropists, and parents to better understand this condition and how children with Down syndrome can live healthier and more independent lives. He is also the cofounder and organizer of a widely acclaimed annual fundraising event in South Bend known as A Night of Art & Blues, which supports Down syndrome research.
